WEST LIBERTY, MORGAN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1921.

WHOLE NUMBER 566

JOHN HENRY WILLIAMS

I authorized the press some months ago, to announce my candidacy for County Attorney. Having been engaged as a teacher in the Morgan County High School, it has not been my privilege to see many of the voters; but I hope to be able to see and talk to every voter in the county before the election.

I am asking your support upon my own merits and not on the accounts of my opponents.

I was reared on a farm, left an orphan boy at four years, worked my way through high school and college. I am a farmer, living on a farm, also, school teacher and lawyer, and so I know the needs of the schools.

The right man in the right place will do the right thing; but a corrupt man can not be trusted, even by his associates. Investigate and see if I am the right man. You can often hear it said, "Elect a good man to office and he will become corrupt." Never was there a more erroneous statement uttered nor a greater injustice done the honest man than to utter such statements, for the corrupt man in office was corrupt before he got there, but just did not have the chance of showing his corruptness as well.

One of my own friends said to me, while I was making my former race for this same office, "You will have to lay down your honesty and resort to any means to get votes."

God forbid! From my father, I inherited my love for honest, full, truth, manly, and temperate living, an invincible will power, a determination to stick to the job I had undertaken. That father has been dead many years, but I still cherish the memory of those noble traits in him.

That memory was incentive for me making the resolve never to touch liquor, never to swear, never to use tobacco, never to commit adultery and never to gamble. By the help of God I have kept those resolutions and lived a life constant with the faithful keeping of them since my father's death, eighteen years ago. Again, that memory was the guiding star through the struggle which I had to pass and told that was necessary for me to try to make my life a useful one to myself, my country and my God. Many of you are aware that I was left penniless and therefore had apparently no chance of getting the education that I much desired, but with that invincible will power inherited from my father, I undertook the task with the determination to stick to the job I had undertaken, I worked hard many times toiled until one or two o'clock at night. By these hard hours I passed and received a high school diploma from Hazel Green Academy in 1910 and a L. L. B. degree from the University of Kentucky in 1910. These credentials may not be much in practical life, but the toll I paid in getting them ought to be a guarantee of my character.

Certainly they should count for more than leading and moping around aimlessly, with no purpose in life. If there was a good purpose, enough energy to carry it out. He who is able to work and forced to do so will breed in you temperance, self-control, diligence and a host of other virtues which the schools can not teach.

Corrupt politics. They are the work of corrupt men. If you elect a corrupt man to the school board, you will have a corrupt school board, you would hear a corrupt man and a rush to take money from the schools and the not; but, instead, you owe to yourself and your county the duty of supporting the best man for the position. Neither will I ask your aid because I was left an orphan boy and had to work my way through school, nor because I made a race once before and came so near winning. I ask your support only on the condition that when you have investigated my past life and find that my mental, moral and legal qualifications and my energetic way of doing things warrant me to be worthy of the thought conveyed by Alice Cary, when she said: "True worth is in being, not seeming. In doing each day that goes by—Some little good—not in dreaming Of great things to do by and by."

I earnestly implore you to give me your support if you can consistently do so, and I will express to you in advance my deepest gratitude; and, if elected, I will do everything in my power to cause you never to regret your deed of kindness.

Yours, for a better county,
J. H. WILLIAMS.

Chautauque—

Elam-Ferguson.

Mr. Chester Elam and Miss Flora Ferguson were married at the residence of the bride's father Wednesday, May 25, Eld. J. F. Wheeler officiating. The groom is the son of N. T. Elam, a prosperous farmer of Index, and is a young man of fine character and habits.

The bride is the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Eli Ferguson, of Licking River, and is very popular in the younger set.

The Courier extends to the young couple its heartiest felicitations.

Chautauque—

Ward-Withrow.

Mr. Lester Ward and Miss Frol Withrow were married at Lenox Wednesday, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Harlan Murphy officiating. The groom is a young man of splendid character and is an industrious, prosperous farmer.

The bride is the beautiful daughter of Withrow, of Lenox, and was a general favorite in that section.

The Courier joins with their many friends in wishing them a happy and prosperous voyage on the sea of life.

Chautauque—

Delightful Party.

A delightful party was given at the residence of Senator Chas. D. Arnett Monday night in honor of his son, Garland, who had returned that day. The young people had a splendid time and were royally entertained. Games of various kinds were indulged in and delicious refreshments were served.

All present reported a delightful time. Those present were: Misses Elsie Arnett, Mazie Spurlock, Rosalee Franklin, Leona Henry, Eva Spurlock, Martha Oakley, Evelyn Swango, Gladys Nickell, Rosalee Dyer and Bonnie Franklin; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Sherer; Mesdames D. R. Keeton, Floyd Arnett and Chas. Franklin; Messrs. Winfred Sparks, Robert Cole, Fred Oakley, A. Young Hovernal, Owen Daniel, Gardner Spurlock and Hurst Dyer.

Chautauque—

Base Ball.

The Ezel base ball team came over Saturday for a return game, and as the boys predicted, the tables were turned and West Liberty won by a score of 9 to 0.

The game was exciting throughout and up to the last half of the ninth it was uncertain. A feature of the game was the batting and fielding of Dyer. The teams had tied, 2 to 2 in the second and it stayed tied until the sixth when Ezel scored four runs. Then in the eighth, West Liberty found the Ezel pitcher and piled on runs till the score was as above. The Ezel team is a fine bunch of boys and played a good game and took their defeat good naturedly, remembering, no doubt, that they had the laugh on our boys the Saturday before.

Chautauque—

Notice for Pardon.

All who may be concerned are hereby notified that an application for pardon will be made for Edwin Gross who is now serving a term in the penitentiary for forgery.

EDWIN GROSS.

Chautauque—

Elam for the People.

Since I announced for the Democratic nomination for Representative I have received very much encouragement, and I wish to thank the splendid citizenship of the county for their professed support, and I especially desire to thank the noble womanhood of Morgan county for their promised support in the coming primary.

It has been my ambition since boyhood to represent my county people in the General Assembly of Kentucky, so that I might be of some service to them, and I promise that if I am elected I shall not tire in earnest effort to serve them well.

There are one billion five hundred million dollars worth of property in Kentucky which has never been placed upon the tax duplicate, and I promise the people to work incessantly to get a law that will subject this property to taxation so that the taxes of the farmer and real estate owner may be materially lessened. The burden of taxation has not been brought upon the county officials, but by the law-making powers at Frankfort, which has given us one of the most difficult systems of taxation known.

I shall look after your interests faithfully and be ever watchful in your behalf, and I shall favor such legislation as will give to the farmers of the mountains the same advantages of the bluegrass. I approve the plan of the State building and maintaining the inter-county seat highways, and will favor raising the revenue by taxes on the property of the ultra rich that has so long escaped taxation, and not on the property of the farmer and small property owner. Again thanking you, I am,

Sincerely yours,

T. J. ELAM.

Chautauque—

To the Voters of Magisterial District No. 2.

I take this method of announcing my candidacy for Justice of the Peace for Magisterial district No. 2. Four years ago I was a candidate for this office and retired from the race with the understanding with Mr. Day, who is present Justice, that he would not oppose me this time.

In announcing my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Justice I want to state to the voters that if elected I will do my utmost to enforce the law, and will act fearlessly and without favor in bringing all offenders to justice.

In regard to the appropriation for roads I will advocate the plan of expending the money raised by taxation for road purposes in each of the districts in proportion to the amount they pay into the treasury. I believe in good roads and if elected will try to have the culverts and things necessary to the building of good roads distributed to the various parts of the county so that the roads of each section can be improved.

In regard to the expenditure of the county's funds I want to state that I do not believe in a miserly or stingy program, but I will try to see that every dollar expended will be well spent. I favor better roads, better churches, better schools and better methods of farming. I believe that when work is done for the county it should be done on the same principle that work is done for an individual—a dollar's worth of real work for a dollar. I stand for improvement and will be for any betterment of the county to benefit the people but will insist that we get what we pay for.

Most of the Democrats in the district know me and know of my past life and that the promises will be faithfully carried out. If elected, I have been a teacher for many years, am a farmer and have tried to assist in the introduction of new methods for our farms, and have benefited in a financial way by the introduction of purebred stock and better methods of farming.

If elected I will study the needs of the county and will render faithful and conscientious service. I ask the voters of the district to consider my claims and to support me if they believe that I will make them a good officer.

Yours very truly,

WALTER M. HENRY.

A Mother's Plea.

Cune, Ky., May 31, 1921.

Editor Courier,

West Liberty, Ky.

Dear Sir:

It is with a sad heart that I am impelled to write in regard to the moonshine whiskey that is being sold here. It has gotten the best of so many of our men and blighted the lives of so many wives and mothers in our town that there was a cry went up a few months ago of "What Can Be Done?" Again we cry in their behalf, "What can we do?"

Why, mothers, we can vote this fall for men whom we know will do their duty and rid the county of this scourge and put an end to the woe it is causing.

I hope that this will not go to the waste basket until it has found an appeal to the voters of Morgan county.

A Christian Mother.

(You have named the remedy for the liquor business. If the women of the county will get together and lead the character of the candidates and vote for the men who give best evidence of really enforcing the law, the question of stopping the traffic will have been solved. If the county officers really want to stop moonshining and bootlegging they can do it—Editor.)

Withdraws from Race.

West Liberty, Ky., June 1, 1921.

To the Democrats of Morgan county:

Owing to the state of my health, which prevents me from making an active canvass of the county, I take this method of withdrawing from the race for County Clerk.

In quitting the race I desire to sincerely thank those who pledged me their support and want to say to them that I hope to be able to repay them in the future.

I am withdrawing solely for the reason stated and not in the interest of any candidate. My friends who pledged their support to me are released from their promises and I have no suggestions as to whom they support. It is enough that they felt sufficient interest in my candidacy to promise to support me, and I would feel that it was presumptuous in me should I suggest how they vote.

Again, I want to thank those good friends who pledged their support, and to them I will say that I will be grateful to them so long as I live. Hoping that I may be spared many years to serve the Democratic party, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

COIZA HEITON.

Oil in Morgan County.

The Haden Williams No. 3, drilling by M. Larkins Oil Co., near Elma, on Big Paint, was completed and given a test last week. Made 30 barrels first day in ten hours, second day 10 barrels in 3 hours, valves sandless.

No. 4 has been located and work will begin soon.

Mr. Williams has three good producers on his farm with three one hundred barrel tanks filled, a power has been installed to pump the wells.

A pipe line is expected immediately to be built connecting with the Keeton field. This oil is found in the wear sand at a depth of seven hundred feet, sand is from 30 to 40 feet thick.

This new field recently opened, it's size unknown although it has plenty of untapped territory joining it—Salersville Independent.

Circuit Court.

By an over sight in correcting the official directory we occasionally ran in the Courier we failed to get the change in the time of the fall term of Circuit Court. The next term of Circuit Court will be the second Monday in August, or August 8, instead of in September as the directory erroneously had it.

Witherspoon Dead.

It is with great sadness that we read the announcement of the death of N. Holly Witherspoon, of Winchester. He had many friends in Morgan county who will regret to hear of his death. Funeral services at Winchester, Thursday.

BOB RANKIN, County Agent.

Those Pesticiferous Patrons.

"Eh-yah!" confessed the proprietor of the Tote Fair store in Tullahoma, Ark. It's to be wearing on a fellow to stay in business on one spot for 20 years. But I could stand it all right, I reckon, if customers would only come in at the right time, when I haven't got an argument on hand or ain't listening to a funny story or telling one, or wanting to rest my game leg, or cussing some gent out, or something that a-way.

"But dad-burn it, they won't! No matter how busy I am convincing somebody that he's a political fool, or sorter working a swap up, or trying to collect a bill, or flogging on my books, or bowdizing with some feller that I ain't seed fer a coon's age, or learning the news of the world from a drummer, and so forth, yur comes in a customer, snorting to be waited on right now though the heavens fall, as it were. And even when I'm out back of the store pitching horseshoes, be-dogged if some un-easy cuss won't come and hoo-rar for me to go in and sell him a quarter's worth of some-er mother! That's what makes merchandizing so devilish tiresome. Some times I feel that if I was rich I'd run a store with a big sign across the front, saying that no goods would be sold except when the proprietor didn't feel like doing anything else."—Country Gentleman.

To Candidates:

Of course the candidates will go over the county and see as many of the people as possible and tell them their reasons for expecting support, but, my friends, did you ever stop to consider that your time with each man will necessarily be short and that it will be impossible to explain in detail your reasons for believing a candidate?

The Courier goes to nearly every home in the county and you can get your reasons for being a candidate and the reasons why you expect their support to all of them—practically at the same time and in a way that they will read it carefully and consider it.

Then the cost of getting your views before the people through the Courier is trifling compared to the expensive method of the house to house canvass.

The people read the things that appear in the Courier and you can reach more people through its columns than in any other way.

Readers are only 7½ cents a line for each insertion.

To Begin Survey of Road.

Mr. T. B. Smith, Division Engineer of the Kentucky Road Commission, was in town Friday and Saturday and when approached by the Courier, said that in the near future surveys would begin on that part of the road from Index to the Menefee county line and that it was expected that it would be completed before fall. He said that it was the intention of the commission to let the contracts for the construction early in 1922 and that it would be completed as rapidly as possible.

"Will the road be hard surfaced?"

was asked.

"Ultimately they will," he said. "It is the intention of the commission to give the main trunk lines a first-class surface. But the means to do this will have to be provided, as the revenue available is not sufficient to do this."

In a few years the roads of this section will be as good as those anywhere, and the real prosperity of the mountains will begin.

The Good Roads Convention will be held at Louisville, at the Jefferson County Armory, June 7-10. One of the most elaborate programs ever given will be had, and the delegates will be royally entertained by the various institutions of the Falls City, Ill. Fifty different exhibits of road machinery will be shown. A four hour excursion on the big river boat, America, will be part of the entertainment.

THE ROAD TO WRIGLEY.

There is need of the repair of the road to Wrigley. With a few changes and some sensible work the road from here to Wrigley could be put in fine condition, and we hope that the work will be done immediately. A proper draining and the throwing up of the road to the center and the grading in a place or two will make this a splendid road. It is a very important road, too, and we hope that it will be put in good shape at once.

The fine road to Index is causing a rapid spread of the good road spirit and is only a matter of a short time until the people will be demanding the best roads possible.

SPEED MANIACS.

The Courier would warn some of the speed maniacs who own cars that auto racing should be confined to the racing courses. If the reckless driving that some of our drivers indulge in is continued it is only a matter of a short time until a serious accident occurs.

The town authorities announce that they will enforce the ordinance against fast driving in town, but unfortunately it is not easy to enforce the speed laws in the country. On the Index road, that splendid piece of road just opened to travel, there is much reckless driving. It being a road across a mountain it necessarily has many short turns, and some of the drivers make these at high speed and without sounding their horns.

The Courier hopes that the drivers of automobiles will think seriously of the matter and use more caution in the use of the roads. It ought not require the death or maiming of someone to bring them to their senses.

RACE TRACK GAMBLING.

There is being agitated throughout the State the question of abolishing race track gambling, and the press is busy discussing the pros and cons of the matter.

The advocate of the Pari Mutuel says that the abolition of the betting will destroy the race horse industry. Both sides of the question are sending a flood of literature to the Courier asking for publication.

On this question, as on all questions, the Courier shapes its course by what it conceives to be right in the matter. If gambling is wrong, that ends the matter, so far as the Courier's position is concerned. It can not advocate a wrong just because the wrong makes the breeding of race horses profitable. There is no more reason why race track gambling should be legalized than poker playing. Licensing poker playing would make it profitable to run gambling houses and would build up a very profitable business. If gambling is wrong, abolish it; if it is right, open all forms of it wide open. It resolves itself into a question of right or wrong, as do all public questions.

Gentlemen:
I am sorry to inform you that I am not getting my paper regularly. I have missed three copies in the last two months.

I suppose the handshaking season has arrived in Morgan. I wish the boys could all be elected.

And in those days they said, "Let's be done with Wrigley and Wobble. Let's get back to normal." The policy of the Republican party that began with Sen. Lodge's famous round-robin has had wonderful results. It has given us a Republican administration repudiating the treaty of Versailles and repudiating the American Government from entering upon a program of peace and disarmament. It has fed the flames of discord in the old world, deranged the rate of exchange and almost destroyed our foreign trade. It has prostrated agriculture, paralyzed the wheels of industry and mobilized an army of four million unemployed. The Republicans have played the game of politics and won; but a thousand years from now and any school boy will know who Woodrow Wilson was; while one would have to search the annals of history in vain to find that Lodge, Borah or Johnson had ever lived and died.

I am not a prophet but I believe, however hard Mr. Harding may try to make a good president, before his four years are gone he will be marked for political slaughter. Some of the very elements that helped to make him when he falls them, will help to destroy him.

"Canst thou, O partial Sleep, give thy repose to the wet sea boys in the calmest and most still night, with

An Interview With Col. H. C. Whitehead, Remount Service, U. S. A.

"Despite our present-day motor-driven vehicles and trench warfare, the rule of horses to men for the Allies was as one to four against one horse to each 34 men during our own Civil War. And had the former conflict lasted a few weeks longer, the shortage of horses would have been woefully acute. The broad plans of the American Remount Association for selective breeding are, therefore, an important link in our chain of national defense."

The above is a statement by Col. H. C. Whitehead, of the U. S. Remount Purchasing and Breeding Service.

Seen at his headquarters in Lexington, Colonel Whitehead vouchsafed other highly enlightening information, not only about the breeding work in progress, but also of the utility of the thoroughbred horse; the intimate relation between racing and the maintenance and improvement of the standard of blood lines and the importance of the thoroughbred to the State of Kentucky in particular.

"The immediate concern of the American Remount Association," he said, "is to give riding and driving horses and the high-class race horse from extinction. We want to produce a truly American type of cavalry horse—a horse with breeding and quality, as well as bone and substance—a weight-carrier and the best general purpose horse known—a horse that will weigh from 1,000 to 1,250 pounds, standing from 15 hands, 1 inch, to 16 hands, light made, with good tail and action—a walk, trot, gallop horse that can carry weight and follow the bounds across country—that the family can drive to church, and also one that can hold his own at hard work on the farm—a horse that can be used to advantage and economically any and everywhere, except in heavy draft."

"This type of horse has splendid looks, quality, action, and vigor—a wonderful all-purpose horse for the farmer, and one that can be kept at a minimum cost."

"Almost every commercial and military use will be met by the progeny of this breeding plan, dependent primarily upon the size, quality and blood lines of the mares used in breeding."

"Among the stallions to be placed throughout the United States this spring will be over one hundred head of high-class registered thoroughbreds—big horses, with plenty of body, bone and substance. These stallions, placed in the state through Government agencies, will be available to farmers and breeders at a minimum fee. The Government does not expect to make money, but to make it possible and feasible for the farmer and breeder to get the service of a high-class, approved stallion for their good mares, the object being to produce animals of real value and use that will earn their keep—bring a handsome profit when time. We expect the progeny at this time to make general-purpose—cavalry horses, riding and g. horses, show horses, hunters, horses, polo ponies, depending largely upon the mares selected for breeding and the care selected in rearing colts. They will belong to the breeder—the Government will have no strings on them. The owner will be privileged to sell them to whomsoever he pleases at any time. They will be horses admirably adapted to work in both peace and war times.

"But the Government will depend upon them for its supply; and the importance of the horse to the modern army is to be fully realized by the comparison of figures already cited pertaining to the use of the horse in the last great war with those of his use during the Civil War."

"As regards thoroughbred horses racing, every practical horseman knows that it is, first and foremost, vitally necessary in order to test the quality of individual horses—it is the final test that goes to measure their value for breeding purposes, and is thus decisively instrumental in the work of preserving and improving the thoroughbred horse as the race upon which depends the preservation and improvement of all our other kinds of horses and mule mares."

"Meanwhile, the evolution of thoroughbred horse racing has given the world a great out-of-door sport—one that the world truly enjoys, if the attendance at our metropolitan race courses may be taken as evidence of popularity, and which, wherever properly conducted, is assuredly healthful and wholesome, insofar, at least, as concerns its effects on the great majority of normal-minded citizens."

"The State of Kentucky is immensely the richer for her industry of breeding thoroughbred horses and its concomitant seasons of racing. Millions and millions of dollars are invested in property throughout the state as a result—not in this taxable wealth confined to the buildings of millionaire enthusiasts whose establishments are located in the Bluegrass District, by any means."

"Many a Kentucky farmer is also a breeder of the thoroughbred—and often the male of a colt or filly rears him more than the products of a season's work on the farm."

"Undoubtedly the sport of racing thoroughbred horses is a tremendous business asset to the state. Facts such as, I dare say, the Kentucky Jockey Club readily can adduce in this connection very well might arouse Kentucky's who have never considered the subject in its substantial and material aspects."

all appearances and means to boot, deny it to a kug? Then happy low lie down! Uncasy lies the head that wears the crown."

Killing in Brashitt.

On Saturday night of last week it is reported that Sam Grigsby Jr., son of McGee Grigsby, of Lost Creek, was shot through the head, and it is believed he will die. The trouble occurred near Clayhole, about 10 miles of Jackson. At this time it is not known who did the shooting, but a young man by the name of Centers is suspected.

Grigsby is a man about 40 years of age and is the only son of McGee and Emmaline Grigsby, a married man, having married some twenty years ago Miss Nancy Godsey, daughter of Charles Godsey a prosperous farmer of that community. He has six or seven children but about seven years ago he left his family and has been living a reckless life since that time. His conduct so grieved his mother that it is believed that it hastened her death, she having died about two years ago. His good old father, one of the county's best citizens, has done all that he could to keep his son out of trouble, but it appears that his efforts have been in vain.

Less than a year ago Grigsby is accused of having killed one of his neighbors boys, for which he was tried at the last November term of Circuit Court and given a sentence of two years, but the verdict was set aside on account of some irregularities in the trial and the case is still pending.

He was a man who was addicted to strong drink and that no doubt is the one thing that has brought upon him all of his troubles and perhaps his untimely death.

The Editor pauses here to suggest that if the fathers and mothers of this county would join in an effort to remove the great temptations and snare set for their sons, by the use of whiskey and other strong drinks, that the life of many a precious boy might be saved and many useful men furnished to the country who might otherwise fill a drunkards' grave.—Jackson Times.

Some of us get relief out of trouble, for it gives us an opportunity to sit in a still place and idly dream the world for it.

"No Children" Signs Come Down. Governor Miller of New York has signed a bill which makes it a misdemeanor for landlords to refuse to rent apartments to families with children. It remains to be seen whether the law can be enforced, for although some will accept it and open their doors to the coming generation, others will seek to evade the statute. Heretofore, childless adults have been favored when renting apartments, and dogs, cats and other pets have had a prior claim on house-room. This law sets a new standard and places children on a basis of equality with the rest of the population. However, it will tend to aggravate the housing shortage and raise rents for the poor.

There are a large number of dogs, among the other causes of the increased cost of living.

"I picked you my word he will," said the Indian Joe Land, "And you keel our best." "Then I show you—yes; who that man there?" Shamessey wheeled about to face the fellow she pointed at, gripping him with one hand, and dragging him forth from among the circle of soldiers. "This is the bird they gave us for a guide," he said shortly. "You know him?" "Yes," she gave vent to a bitter laugh. "That fellow Dull Knife; bad Indian, horse thief. Why they give you him?" "He knows. What'll I do with the cuss, major?" "Have a couple of men hold him under guard. We seem to be on the right track now; senorita, where is this Wolves' hole?" "Over there, not far; across the mesa. You come, I show you. That be better first, senor—just you and some others, so you can tell what to do. Maybe eat be better; we go first, so we be not seen." "On foot? You don't mean we are so near the place?" "Si, senor; I show you." A little band of followers led between the sand ridges, out upon the open plain—the major, a lieutenant, the sergeant, and three men. She led them along a slight depression, sufficiently to partially screen them from observation. The steady fall of snow had ceased, although there were occasional flurries, driving sharply into their faces. Overhead the clouds hung low and gray. Hays swore under his breath, half convinced he was being made a fool of. Twice he started to speak, but held his tongue. The girl never turned her head, but moved straight forward.

She came to a slight ridge, and stopped, suddenly, pointing.

"This there, senor," she said simply, "Wolves' hole."

The astonished officer stood motionless, his mouth open, his eyes staring at the sight so unexpectedly revealed. For an instant he could not believe what he saw. Almost under his feet the precipice fell away into that tremendous gorge, the mantle of snow emphasizing its depth, but bringing out the black rocks in stern contrast.

"Good God!" he exclaimed, "what a gulch! And not a sign to make you dream of its existence. I'd have sworn ten feet back this plain was a dead level for thirty miles. But how in heaven's name do we ever get down there?"

"There is something going on, sir, up yonder in that canon," spoke up the lieutenant eagerly. "Listen. Those are rifles popping, and I can see white puffs of smoke through the glass. There's a fight going on down there."

"D—d if you ain't right, Boyd; they are certainly popping away rather lively." Cornered Shelby likely, and, as I remember the lad, he'll stay with them as long as he has a cartridge left. By jingo! we've got to get down, and clear this nest out. Where's the trail, senorita?"

"Over yonder to the left, senor. You take your guns, so. Now straight along the bank, where that cedar tree tops the edge. It stands all alone. You see what I mean?"

"Yes, beyond that outcropping of stone, the trail goes down there?"

"Si, senor; but if you ride down, your soldiers, they know."

"They keep guard?"

"Si, senor; just below, out of sight, yet where they can see. When I come out they were under a rock shelf to keep off the snow. Maybe they there yet."

"How many?"

"Five, senor; two white and three Sioux."

He studied the spot carefully through the leveled field glasses, and then swept them inch by inch over the snow-covered plain. He returned them to the case, and cast one more glance into the depths below.

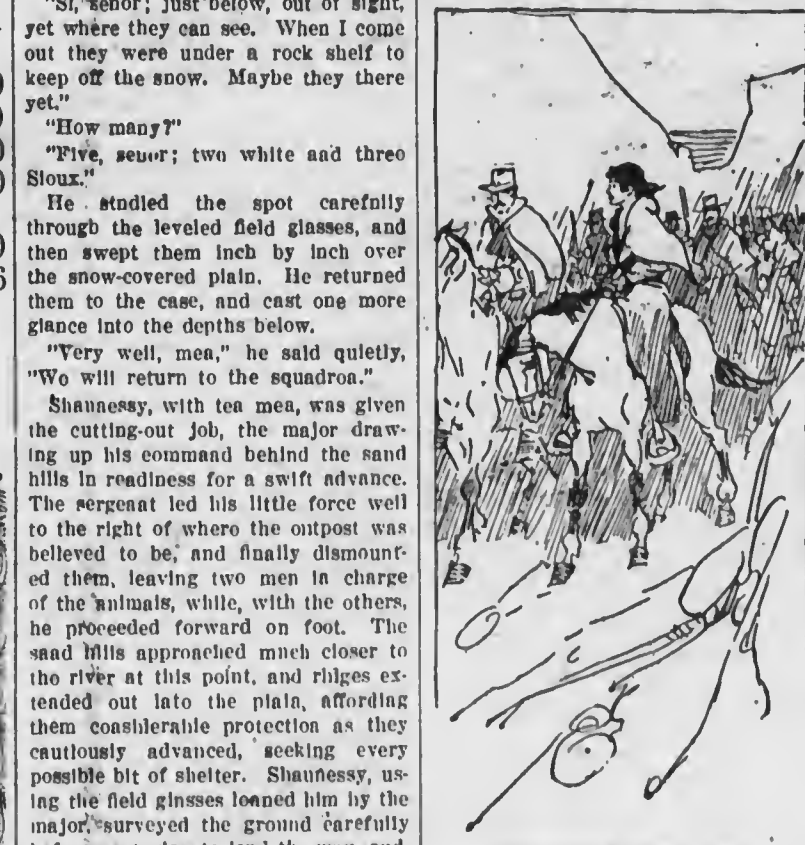

"Very well, men," he said quietly, "We will return to the squadrons."

Shamessey, with tea men, was given the cutting-out job, the major drawing up his command behind the sand hills in readiness for a swift advance. The sergeant led his little force well to the right of where the outpost was believed to be, and finally dismounted them, leaving two men in charge of the animals, while, with the others, he proceeded forward on foot. The sand hills approached much closer to the river at this point, and ridges extended out into the plain, affording them considerable protection as they cautiously advanced, seeking every possible bit of shelter. Shamessey, using the field glasses loaned him by the major, surveyed the ground carefully before venturing to lend the way, and, in this manner, the little party finally crept in behind the crest of land overlooking the valley of the Cottonwood.

It had been the plan to drop silently over the edge of the bank, and work their way along, so as to attack the outlaws from the rear, thus rendering the escape of any impossible. But once there on the ground the slope was found to be far too abrupt for this purpose, and the idea had to be abandoned. The only other procedure was to creep along under the protection of the ridge, trusting to swiftness of attack. The sergeant crept forward, inch by inch, watchful of everything in front. He never glanced back, but his carbine was flung forward, cocked and ready. It was fifty yards to where the guarded cedar protruded above the bank, but no sign of any movement greeted him until he had nearly reached that point. Then, suddenly, with no warning of any kind, a red, blinding fire showed itself up above the edge of the bank. The startled eyes looked directly into the muzzle of the carbine.

"Stop right there, buddy!" said the sergeant sternly. "Now halt, over you go!"

They took the leap recklessly, some rolling down the steep slope, others flinging some sort of foothold and rushing directly forward. The guard was taken by complete surprise, helpless most of them before they could even reach their feet or grasp their weapons. Shamessey backed his prisoner down to where the others stood silent, and surveyed the scene.

Down the Crooked Trail.

If they become alarmed they'll scatter and find a way out before we can strike a blow. Isn't that your idea, captain?"

"Yes, sir; we've got to get in behind and cut them off."

"I presume there is a back door to this hole, somewhere, senorita?"

"Yes, senor; way down yonder, but we can only be made on foot."

"Then we've got the villains, if we only move secretly enough. Take a dozen men, and come along with me quickly. Dismount them. Senorita, I will be best person to show us the way."

They disappeared into the curtain of falling snow, and cautiously advanced beneath the veil of overhanging water. The outlines of the log house could be plainly discerned, the storm suddenly ceasing. The door stood open, smoke arose from the chimney, but no one was visible outside. The dull glow of an expiring fire appeared on the ground in front, but no guard was stationed about it. Evidently the fellows had retired to shelter. The major grasped all this in a glance, but what interested him most was the sound of steady firing some distance away.

"They have either all gone inside," he whispered to Pancha, crouching beside him, "out of the storm, or else they are over there where the fighting is. You hear those rifles?"

"Yes, senor."

"You don't suppose some other outfit had got in here ahead of us, do you?" he asked anxiously.

"No, senor," earnestly grasping his arm. "But it is not that; I know; they fight up the canyon. Listen, set is over there the sound. They try to capture Senor Shelby; if we go quick we save them; we wait, maybe all be dead. Now we get all in the rocks, so none get away."

"I see." He looked at her keenly; then stepped back to where the men were clustered. "Captain, scatter these lads out about that house there; move quickly, and see that no one gets away. Stiles, run back and have the squadron move forward. Bring up your horses."

The men dashed forward in a half-circle, the major, with Pancha at his shoulder advancing close behind them, his objective the open door. No sooner had they broken cover when the alarm sounded; a muffled voice yelled excitedly; a rifle or two cracked; a soldier running rapidly, plunged forward on his face, and lay still. Then white and red surged crowding through the door, surprised, trapped, crazy to escape. Only one among them dared the venture in face of those leveled carbines. A tall, gaunt white renegade, with red whiskers, and one arm in a sling, his uninjured hand gripping a revolver, leaped from the front step in a reckless endeavor to get out of sight around the corner of the cabin. The major flung up his arm and fired; the fellow whirling about in his stride and stumbling as he fell. He got upon one knee again, and the "45" spat twice viciously before a trooper sent a bullet crashing into his brain. Hays felt the drip of blood past his face, but stood erect, unmoved. Behind him Pancha uttered a startled sob and sank slowly onto the snow. He sprang back and caught her, holding her head up on his knee, his eyes staring down into her white, upturned face. She breathed once—that was all; never spoke, never moved, except for the slight tremor of her slender form in his arms. The major laid her softly down, his own face drawn and white with sudden passion, and strode across to where the sala outlaw lay in a huddled heap. An instant he looked down at the brutal face, obliquely to all else.

"D—n you!" he muttered in useless rage. "I wish I'd killed you!"

Then he turned, suddenly, the spirit of the soldier in the ascendancy.

"Deploy your men, Captain Giles," he commanded, his voice hard and stern. "Swing them into line. Leave a squad here under a sergeant. Live it, boys; that is one of our old lads fighting those devils over yonder. Now we're going to strike in, and d—n me, if I care if you never take a prisoner. Good! Give me my horse. All ready? Bigger, sound the charge!"

They swept forward, on a walk, then a trot, spreading out onto long, double file, as they swung into the more open valley, riding knee to knee, the men bending forward in their stirrups, with left hand grasping the reins, the right gripping the short carbines. A hundred yards and they were at the gallop, a blus torrent, at the heels of their leader; tearing through weeds and underbrush, spurring recklessly into and over the creek, dashing up the other bank to the very foot of the bluff beyond. It was then the major saw the uselessness of it. He whirled with uplifted saber.

"Flight on foot. Horse-holders to the rear. Come on, lads!" he shouted, his voice pealing above even the thud of hoofs. "Get up there some way, your terriers, and give those red devils hell!"

They came forward at a run, yelling as they came, and leaped in among the rocks, their carbines beginning to spit as they clambered upward. Overhead were skurrying figures, and spurts of black smoke, as the Indian rifles made answer.

He held up the flap of skin, and stared where she pointed. Across the white snow covering the valley below, riding stirrup in a wild charge, two lines of cavalry were sweeping straight toward the foot of the bluff. He knew what they were at a glance; their lines steady even at a gallop, the spurring officer in front, the glitter of carbines, the silence, left no doubt. No Indian rode like that. He watched them, grasping her tightly to him now, scarcely able to speak. Once only, he gave utterance.
"My God! See those fellows ride!"
"They are soldiers!"
"Yes, yes! Good Lord, lassie, but that looks like old days leading 'em. Its the Sixth, the Sixth—a squadron of the Sixth!"
He staggered to his knees, but still held himself up, peering over the coping. She knelt beside him, half supporting him against her shoulder. The charging horsemen swept in out of sight below, but they could hear their crash through the underbrush, and splash their way across the stream. Then there echoed up to them the ringing cheer of white voices, and the dull bang of the carbines.
How they made that ascent it is doubtful if a trooper knows; but they did, creeping from rock to rock, dragging themselves along gullies, hauling their bodies up by sheer strength of arm, springing from point to point—inch by inch, foot by foot, fighting as they advanced, firing at every skulking figure in their front, skirting precipices, leaping across chasms, clinging desperately to every rock or shrub their carbines spitting viciously, eager only to get at hand's grips with the foe. High above, Shelby and Olga caught glimpses of toiling figures, of leaping jets of flame, of fierce struggles hand to hand, of Indians seeking to escape. Sharp-voiced rifles answered the carbines, and a dead soldier hung dangling over the edge of a rock; another nursed a bleeding arm in the shelter of a cedar. But the unhurt came on. Some among them had stumbled onto the trail, for soon a squad appeared just below. They stopped and turned over the body of a dead man, as to see the man's face; then tramped forward, paying no heed to the dead Indians. Shelby recognized the major among them, and arose to his feet with difficulty, supporting himself with one arm about Olga's shoulder. The major was panting from the exertion of the climb, never glancing up until brought to a halt by the rock. Its foot littered with the dead bodies of savages.
"Good God! Look here," he exclaimed.

ad excitedly. "Those fellows were paying the price," he choked and conched. "Where that sort of thing winds me. Must be getting old, sergeant, yet, by Jove! I passed the test two weeks ago." He cast his eyes upward, and saw the two standing just above him. "Hello, Shelby! we are here in time, then. Some good fighting, my boy. Here, a couple of you, give me a lift. I'll never make it alone."

He was hoisted, over the stone coping, instantly straightening up and warmly grasping Shelby's outstretched hand.

"Not badly hurt, I judge, lad!"

"No, sir; clipped here and there is all, and have lost some blood."

"Mighty glad of that. By God, you are an honor to the regiment!" He turned about, and stared down the bluff, his eyes brightening with appreciation. "Talk about your Alpine chasms; those fellows of mine could give pointers to a mountain goat. Just look at them come up there. By the way, Shelby, we've got a surgeon back there somewhere. If you don't need him yourself, you've got a wounded man here, I understand."

"No, sir; his name was Macklin, and he's dead. He died before the fight began. Who told you?"

"A little Macklin girl; seemed to think a lot of the fellow. Mocking up with her is what brought us in here."

"Pancha—yes; where is she?"

"The major removed his hat soberly. 'I am sorry to say she got hurt—yonder by the waterfall.'"

"Hur! Not killed?"

"Yes, instantly."

Shelby drew a long breath, and his eyes and those of his wife's met.

"She is happier that way, Tom," she said understandingly. "Now she will never know. I dreaded so to tell her."

Mays caught the words, his eyes seeking the speaker's face.

"Who was the man?" he asked shortly. "One of the outfit?"

"Yes; in no way worthy."

"I thought likely; and you. I take it, madam, you are Tom Shelby's wife?"

"Yes," she answered quietly, her clasped tightening on her husband's arm. "I am, and also Colonel Carlyn's daughter. We both belong to the Sixth."

"Carlyn's daughter! Great Scott! do you actually mean that? Do you know they have been hunting you from one end of the border to the other? There was a lawyer in my quarters a week ago questioning me about what had become of Sergeant Carlyn. Lord, I didn't know."

"It is true, then, that I am wanted?"

"They've been trying to strike your trail for years, the lawyer told me. Some money down East which was left to your mother; let's see, she was a—"

"Churchill."

"That's it. The first thing you better do, young woman, is to take a trip to old Virginia."

She smiled, a wistful look in the depths of her eyes, as they sought the face of her husband.

"It is just as Tom says," she answered quietly. "I am very content now."

The firing had ceased, and soldiers crowded the trail below; the play was ended.

You're coming to the Chautauqua, of course. This year we have the promise of one of the best we have had in years. You will see from the illustrations in this ad that the very best talent has been engaged. Make your arrangements to attend all the sessions as they will be instructive and entertaining.

This year the central thought in the Chautauqua will be "Building a Community" and "American Ideals."

In the readjustment period now on hand these topics are very timely. The lectures are directed toward the community as the unit of government and the necessity of each community grasping the higher ideals is emphasized.

"Americanism" is the theme of the three lectures at night, and now, when the propaganda of the Red destroyers of organized society are busy, the promulgation of good, clean Americanism and American ideals is very timely.

If you have not been attending the Chautauquas in the past few years you have missed much. Make up your mind to attend every session this year and you will find that you have been greatly benefitted.

Arrange your work so that you can come to the Chautauqua and bring your family. The lecturers are men of national reputation and bring a message that will help. The amusement part of the program will please you, amuse you and bring the health-giving laugh. Attending the Chautauqua will rest you and put new "pep" into you and you will go back to your work feeling so that you will make up the time spent and profitably for attending.

Roosevelt said that the Chautauqua was the people's university.

GUMPTION

Our Motto: One country, one flag, one wife at a time.
Our Aim: To tell the truth though the heavens fall.
Our Hope: To cure cussedness or kill the cusses.

THE CHAUTAUQUA.

This year will be the sixth year of the Radcliffe Chautauqua at West Liberty. A number of progressive citizens, year after year, have signed a guarantee that the Chautauqua owners will receive the sum agreed upon, and as a whole guarantors have had to pay a small sum each to make their guarantee good. But the sum has been so small and the benefits of the Chautauqua so great that it is considered an investment rather than a loss. This year it is hoped that the people will attend in sufficient numbers to prevent a loss.

This year there will be six lectures that every citizen of the county should hear. Three of them will be on "Community Building" and three will be on "American Ideals." It is too generally believed that the amusement features of the Chautauqua are the chief attractions, but they are not. The Chautauqua is an educational institution, bringing to the people lectures that formerly were only accessible to people of the larger cities. Roosevelt pronounced it "the People's University," and the educational features are the greatest attractions. This year, in the days of national stress, the Chautauqua management have sent us three lectures that should be heard by every citizen of the county. "America's Political Ideal," "America's Social Ideal," and "America's Industrial Ideal," deal with the present day problems and are by men of national renown.

But as with solid food there must be dessert, so, in the Chautauqua there is arranged features to amuse as well as to instruct, and this year's program promises to be the best we have had. The first day we will have "The Operatic Trio," consisting of two young ladies and one gentleman, stars in the operatic world. On the second day, the "Kuehn Concert Co.," presenting a musical concert on many different instruments, and in the afternoon Miss Marion E. Harvey will entertain the young and old folk with the recital of a number of stories, and will organize the "Junior Citizens" in an organization to promote good citizenship. On the third day the Simpson Sisters will give an entertainment at each session that will be worth the price of the whole Chautauqua ticket.

Heretofore the Chautauqua has not reached out as far as its promoters hoped, and it is to be hoped that this year the citizens from all parts of the county will take advantage of the opportunity and come out to all of its sessions. The roads are getting better and there is no reason why the families of the owners of cars can not attend every session, and others can afford to spend three days and nights here to attend. Begin in time to arrange your business affairs so that you can come out to all the sessions and you will not regret it.

The Chautauqua fosters and develops the Community Spirit wherever it goes, and observers here have noticed that there is a better spirit of co-operation among the citizens of West Liberty now than before the advent of the first Chautauqua. These things are of gradual growth, and each successive year of the Chautauqua further develops that spirit. It brings together and focuses the public mind upon the things that we need and furnishes an opportunity to get together and talk over matters of public interest. Morgan county is rich in undeveloped possibilities. It lacks only the spirit of hearty co-operation to make it one of the greatest counties in the State. Come out to the Chautauqua and help make it a success.

Every teacher in the county should attend the full term of the Chautauqua. The ideas that they will get from the lectures will be of incalculable value to them in their school room work. It is sometimes said of the rural teachers (and it is unfortunately too true in many instances) that he lives only in the text book of the school and has too narrow a vision of the needs of the child; that his method of teaching is a stuffing process instead of a development of the mind powers. The attending the Chautauqua lectures will broaden the vision of the teacher and he will carry back to the school room a nobler conception of his profession, and the broader ideas will be in turn given to the children under his charge.

The farmers should be interested in the success of the Chautauqua. There are problems confronting the nation now that directly concern the farmer, and the problems that will be dealt with in the lectures will be of interest to him. The County Agent, Mr. Rankin, is trying to arrange a meeting of the farmers of the county on Monday, the second day of the Chautauqua. This meeting will not conflict with the afternoon session of the Chautauqua and will give the farmers who attend it an opportunity to attend. We hope that every farmer in the county will arrange to attend both these meetings and feel that they will be repaid for the time lost from work. The age of the farmer is one in which the farmer will have a greater part, and it behooves them to keep abreast of the times. Already the interests of the farmer is such as to cause the Congress of the nation to consider special legislation in his favor, and by closer relationship with each other and better co-operation he will soon come into his own.

But there is no class of people who will not be benefitted by the Chautauqua. It fosters a spirit of community building that should benefit everybody and encourages a closer relationship between the citizens. Community meetings, community centers and all community work will receive a boost from the attendance of the Chautauqua; every one who attends will be benefitted and the country in general will feel the influence for good that it radiates.

Make your arrangements to attend this year. Talk of it with your neighbors and urge them to come. Let's spread the word to the remotest part of the county.

Boost the Chautauqua from now until the evening of the last session.

Our Presidents, Up to Date.

Washington first—he arranged the finance; Then came John Adams, who quarrelled with France. Thomas Jefferson third—Louisiana he bought; James Monroe gave the doctrine and let in Missouri. Then Adams, whose tariff aroused men to fury. Jackson, seventh, refused to the bank a new charter And made poor Van Buren to pale a martyr. William died and by Tyler was followed. Under Polk all the troops in a bloody war swallowed. Taylor, eleventh, had trouble with slavery; Pinmore put through the Clay compromise, with bravery. Then Pierce struggled through the Nebraska division. And Buchanan was in for the Dred Scott decision. Great Lincoln was wise in a time of depression. When Southern states fought for the right to secession. Andrew Johnson came next was impeached and acquitted; Ulysses S. Grant for two terms seemed fitted. Hayes followed; then Garfield, whom Arthur succeeded; Then Cleveland, who Congress by veto impeded. Harrison's term gave the tariff a send-up. And Cleveland again held the Democrats end up. McKinley waged war with the poor Spanish nation. And Roosevelt came and upheld arbitration. Then Teddy named Taft, and the G. O. P. split up; Next Wilson, and the sky with the World war was lit up. The great referendum gave the league a hard whack. And Harding was picked to bring hard times back.

"Say It With a Boost."

The following poem was handed the editor by one of Lawrence County's most active Democrats. It sure hits the nail on the head.

The farmer sat in his easy chair, Smoking his pipe of clay, While his good old wife Was counting the eggs. Preparing to give them away: The house dog lay Stretched out on the floor Where the afternoon sun Went to steal. When the old man vent And began to let out a squeal. He cursed and he swore, And said he didn't know, Such liars were "owed to run loose. He said, "Shut up, You wanted a change, It's good enough for you, old goose, I thought that word Was too big for your pate. Don't you see? But you "twined that you knowed, That the debts that you owed Could be paid. With that word "Normalcy."

The Salt in the Sea.

The saline matter in the ocean is sufficient to make a block of salt measuring 4,800,000 cubic miles. If spread over the entire surface of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, it would form a crust more than a mile and a half deep. One per cent of the content of salt in the ocean would cover all the land areas of the globe to a depth of 260 feet.—United States Geological Survey.

Highest and Lowest Points in the World.

The difference between the highest and lowest points of land in the United States is 14,777 feet, according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior. Mount Whitney, the highest point, is 14,501 feet above sea level, and in Death Valley there is a depression that lies 278 feet below sea level. These two points, which are both in California, are less than 90 miles apart. This difference in height is small, however, as compared with the difference in the height and depth of land in Asia. Mount Everest rises 29,002 feet above sea level, whereas the shores of the Dead Sea lie 1,200 feet below sea level. A total difference in height of 30,202 feet. Mount Everest has never been climbed.

The greatest depth yet found in any ocean is 32,088 feet, the depth at a point about 40 miles north of the island of Mindanao, in the Philippine Islands. The bottom of the sea at this point is therefore more than 114 miles below the summit of Mount Everest.

Mrs. Gabbis (showing photo to her husband): "This is an instantaneous picture of myself."

Mr. Gabbis: "I can see that without having it told. Your mouth is shut."

Cuts a Clean Swath

Here's a mower you can depend upon to go through your heaviest hay, and do a clean job of cutting. It does the kind of work you are proud of. And you can keep it in good cutting order for years to come.

JOHN DEERE DAIN MOWER

By simple nut adjustments that can be made in the field with an ordinary wrench, all the lag in the cutter can be taken out and the knife can be re-centered.

We are positive that the John Deere Dain transmits more power to the knife than any other mower built. The simple arrangement of the gears prevents end thrust and side wear on the bearing and gears, which means a minimum loss of power.

Come in and look over our full line of harvesting tools.

Shoes For Old Folks

Old folks' feet require unusually comfortable footwear—shoes that do not pretend to be up to date in style but are built to give the foot ample freedom of movement.

Our experience in fitting elderly people has guided our purchases of stock and we are therefore, exceptionally well qualified and equipped to serve that class of trade.

We have a wide range of such shoes as most old folks prefer and are careful in fitting them.

Advertising Talk No. 6.

It is impossible to run any business successfully without advertising. No progressive business man now debates the question of whether or not advertising pays. He calculates how much he can profitably spend on advertising, and in what way.

There is nothing that equals in effectiveness and in getting returns the newspaper. The newspaper goes into the homes and is read and talked over and the advertisement that it carries, if well written and offers inducements, will be the means of directing the prospective purchaser to the store of the advertiser.

Your ad should be convincing and give the reader a clear idea of what you have to sell and the price. Price is the real "pull" in an advertisement if you know you have an article that you can sell at a real bargain, put the price in an ad. A little bit lower price on an article will bring the trade.

The constant advertiser is the one who reaps the most benefits from advertising. A regular advertiser forces the public to keep thinking of his business. A small space every week is better than a page ad once a month.

American Soldier's Big Pay. Gen. Foch, head of the allied troops, gets 33,000 francs a year. An American second lieutenant at Coblenz gets $2,300. Since the rate of exchange is 14 1/2 francs to the dollar his pay equals $2,300 francs. It is said that the 15,000 American troops cost Germany more than the 80,000 French. With a dollars worth from 60 to 65 marks the buck private getting $30 a month has a greater income than some of the high German officials. And he lives that way. A fine meal can be purchased for 30 marks, about 50 cents—and the private along the Rhine lives like gentlemen. Their officers say they also behave like gentlemen, a drunken soldier being rarely seen.

Behind the bars of the Pike county jail, are J. B. Elam, wife and daughter, and son, James, charged with the murder of Charles and James Case, in an affray brought about, we are informed, by moonshine liquor. From the information we can get, the truth is that the Case family were in the habit of selling moonshine liquor.
